Diplomacy A La Junior

If young Junior comes home from high school some day with a slightly up-turned nose and a brisk demand for diplomatic woodshed immunity, just chalk it up to the Department of State's Latin American Good Neighbor policy. Language, the authorities point out, is the most persistent barrier between western nations. If that wall can be destroyed, the chances for real cooperation between the 21 American nations will be greatly increased. In a very real sense, every Spanish-taught high school student is an ambassador of good will toward the Latin American nations. Whether or not high school French ever helped cement Franco-American unity might be open to question. If we remember our last experience, the reverse was probably true. The fact remains, however, that no single effort could solidify Pan-Americanism so quickly as a wide exchange of languages. And anyway, with all those Spanish songs filling the air, how much fun it would be to actually know what the band leader means when he announces, "Mama yo quiero!"

Marx Brothers vs. Karl Marx

The shadowy outlines of a hammer and sickle have once more been glimpsed on Hollywood's silver screen. With that one-time leading Stalinite, Miss Shirley Temple, now retired to private life, a new list of cinema comrades has just been published. The juxtaposition of communist doctrine and capitalistic wages has always reduced the Hollywood plot to an absurdity. The compound of red talk and million dollar tax returns fits the plot of a Marx Brothers comedy better than it does the confines of a Marxian discourse. Hollywood has deftly taken the blows of reformers and radicals alike on its double chin. The communist investigation may safely be interned in the family plot that hides the remains of the wild party legend. If communism in America is limited to the smart talk at Hollywood tea tables, America need never fear that Marx will become more than just one of those funny brothers who chase laughs and ladies on the screen.

Cosmetics and Cartridges

From out of the wreckage of a Europe at war comes word calculated to chill the feminine heart to an icier degree than any threat of bombing. Those peculiarly feminine charms of fashion, style, and make-up have all been locked away in the air raid shelters—for the duration. Feminine Paris has felt the heel of her masculine conquerors in the order: "No more flashing red nails, no more painted toes!" The non-blitzkreiged but penitent Riviera has ordered a ban on one-piece bathing suits. Even the traditionally independent English ladies have surrendered their rights to 1940 models in clothes and cosmetics in exchange for a few more 1940 model planes. Indeed, changes are the order of the day. Cosmetics have given way to cartridges, fashion to rifles.

HE'S IN THE NAVY NOW

HARRY EVANS

Constable Harry D. Evans is in Campbell on leave from yesterday until the 29th when he is to report back to the receiving ship at San Francisco for active duty; as all of the Naval reserve force have been recalled for service.

Evans has reported, passed examination and been named Chief Commissary steward with permanent appointment.

All reserve officers who had 16 or more years of active service and had not been out of service over a certain length of time, have been called.

Evans served in the Navy in Mexico in 1912 and 13 and in Nicaragua in 1914, and during the World War.

He has appointed his son Harry G. Evans and Night watchman Frank Weeks as deputy constables to perform the duties of his office.

Press Receives Interesting Letter From Ranger

Irving Townsend, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Townsend, N. Union Avenue, in a letter from Hot Springs, Ark. renewing his subscription to the Campbell Press, says how much he and his family would like to be here at this time to enjoy some of the fruits of the home ranch.

Referring to his present location he states:

"Political controversy, war, economic strife and what have you, do not seem to effect the popularity of the nations Spa—Hot Springs. We still bathe about 50 thousand (July's a little above that) during the summer months and about twice that many during the winter months, so business remains, as usual. Many come on crutches and in wheel chairs but leave walking and singing praises for the physical help they have received in bathing."

Reverend and Mrs. George Marsh of Ojai are guests of Mrs. Lillian Voge. Mr. Marsh is attending the sessions of the general conference of Congregational churches of America being held this week in Berkeley. Mrs. Marsh, before her marriage lived in Campbell and Rev. Marsh was an interim minister here a number of years ago.

The Footlighters Will Present Plays Friday, August 30

There's a bustle in Campbell nurseries these days as the town's younger set makes ready for "Tom Thumb's Wedding," one of a group of three plays The Footlighters local amateur drama group, will present Friday, August 30, in Campbell union grammar school auditorium to benefit the Methodist and Congregational church Sunday schools.

The cast follows: Charles Keesling, minister; Mardel Sanders, bride; Roger Herold, groom; George Nelson, best man; Virginia Grattan, maid of honor; Joline Howard and Maryalice Grim, bridesmaids; Harry Fish and Jimmie Knappen, ushers; Sandra Howard and Peggy Weaver, flower girls; Sharon Murdock, train bearer; Joan Sanders, bride's mother; Herman Rice, bride's father; Louella Rice, groom's mothers; Nancy Walton, solist; Merrill Grim, pianist; wedding guests, Sunday school children.

The Footlighters appearing in the second play on the program "Be a Little Cuckoo," will be Alma Leverton, as Mrs. Parker, the director of an original play; Betty Sewell, Helen Payne and Marjion Nelson, society girls helping Mrs. Parker in her play; and Merle Knappen, the community house matron. Mrs. Parker is rehearsing her play the afternoon before the performance and many are the hilarious scenes before the curtain falls.

The last of the three performances is "When the Wife's Away," starring LBen Howard, Lenore Weaver, Archie Keesling, Elfrieda Anderson, Theodora Herold and Ira Grim. The husband and his friend are all prepared for an evening when the wife goes on a trip but matters are complicated by the "other woman" and the boys have trouble explaining serious situation which clears itself at the close of the play.

Last Rites For Mrs. C. Mueller Held Wednesday

Mrs. Cresenzia Mueller, wife of Peter Mueller of Campbell Avenue passed away Monday afternoon in a San Jose hospital after a short illness.

A native of Baden, Germany, where she was born 68 years ago, she came to the United States when 18, locating at Philadelphia. In 1913 with her husband and family she came to San Jose, and nine years ago moved to Campbell.

She is survived by her husband; four daughters, Mrs. Elizabeth Bogner, and Mrs. Marie Potter of Campbell and Mrs. Clara Klein and Mrs. Louise Densimone of San Jose, a brother, Philip Auerbach of Philadelphia and ten grandchildren.

Funeral services were held Wednesday at 9 a. m. from the chapel of Denegri-Geoffroy-Origlia, Second and San Carlos streets, San Jose. Requiem mass was offered at St. Martin's church in Burbank at 9:30 a. m., and interment made at Santa Clara Catholic cemetery.

Mrs. Mueller was not very widely known in Campbell as she had lived a rather retired life here, although busily engaged in household duties and in producing beautiful crocheted and knitted pieces, arts she learned in her native country.

Last Rites Held For Relative of Local Residents

Last rites were held Wednesday at Livermore for George Churchill who passed away Sunday morning. Interment was at the Chapel of Chimes, Oakland.

Mr. and Mrs. Churchill were frequent visitors in Campbell and San Jose with Mrs. Churchill's sisters, Mrs. Mabel Keesling, Mrs. Horace Lea and Mrs. J. M. Bowman of Santa Clara. Mrs. Keesling has been spending several

Melvil Voge, One of Six, Skippers Ship

Mrs. Lillian Voge has received from her son, Melvil Voge a clipping from the New York Times of July 18, containing a picture of a group of six men ages 22 to 26, one of them, her son, who have purchased a 69 ton, two-masted auxiliary schooner, in which they sailed on the 19 for Colombia, South America.

Their ship, the Philosopher, was to be changed to Colombia registry, and flying the Colombian flag, ply the 600 mile coast line of that country on the western side of the continent.

The ship can carry a cargo of 100 tons and will be laden with supplies for sale to miners and mining companies as well as trinkets to be used in trading with the natives.

All of the group have shipped before and all know South America, so they know what to expect and plan to remain indefinitely.

Harrison Roberts, Yale '39 will handle business details. All except Mate Voge hail from New York or its vicinity.

Kiwanians Will Have Second Ladies' Night

The Kiwanis club was treated to a really fascinating account of "Ghost line Railroads in California" as told by Clement Fisher of the Santa Fe office in San Jose at Tuesday's meeting. Ralph Noddin was presiding upon this occasion.

Next Tuesday the club will observe the second in the series of ladies nights and a full attendance of wives and members is expected, as the female of the species, credited with being more deadly than the male is arranging the program, and will be in charge.

Mrs. Sanborn Young (Ruth Comfort Nutchell) of Los Gatos will be the speaker and will talk on the "Migrant Problem" and her new book "Of Human Kindness." That should insure a 100 per cent attendance of members not on vacation.

Two Members Initiated Into The Footlighters

Members of The Footlighters met in hall Tuesday evening and conducted necessary business after which they adjourned to the home of the president, Ira Grim for refreshments.

Two new members, Merwyn Nicholls and Mrs. Laverne Hodges, were initiated into the organization in ceremonies at the Grim home. The initiation was conducted by Herald Morton, Archie Keesling, and Ethan Lanphear.

Funeral Services For Local Rancher Held Today

Death claimed Charles Johnson Sunday in a San Jose hospital where he had undergone an operation the preceding day, following a short illness.

Charlie or Carl Johnson as he was sometimes called was born in Sweden but came to this country as a youngman.

He engaged in gold mining in Alaska and with the late J. S. Hagkelin and others of his nationality was there during the troubles portrayed in Rex Beach's "The Spoilers." Returning to the States he lived in Seattle and later in Turlock. In the San Joaquin and here in Campbell he managed ranches for John Brynteson of Sweden, with Mrs. Johnson as book keeper.

For twenty years they had resided on the ranch at the corner of Campbell and Johnson Avenues.

He and Mrs. Johnson had been active workers in the Campbell Congregational church but were affiliated with the Mission Covenant church in San Jose where they attended later and from which services are being held this afternoon in charge of the Roger Darling mortuary, with the interment to be in Oakland.

He leaves a widow, Mrs. Lillian B. Johnson; three sisters, Mrs. Frederika Anderson, Mrs. Hulda Sundquist, and Mrs. Emma Wicklund, and a brother, Albin Johnson, all of Seattle, and a wide circle of friends both American and of Swedish origin.

Aliens Asked To Register

By act of Congress—the Alien Registration Act of 1940—all aliens are required to register and be fingerprinted.

Sample registration forms are now available at the post office which should be called for, studied carefully and filled out. These are not the actual registration forms but show just what information is required and will greatly aid both the alien and the post office officials in filling out the legal sheet.

Registration is free and all necessary help will be given by the post office when the sample forms are brought in.

Registrations will be conducted from August 27 to December 26, 1940.

All aliens in the United States are urged to comply fully with the provisions of the Registration Act, and not to delay registering.

Mrs. and Mrs. Carl Stephens of Aledo, Ill., brother and sister in law of Mr. and Mrs. Fred H. Stephens of the Vaughn subdivision, and Mr. and Mrs. Clare Bradford of Oregon, Ill., are spending three weeks here visiting and sightseeing. A trip to Yosemite will be part of the pleasures enjoyed.

LITTLE VITAMINS FROM BIG

Just about the time we'd decided the alphabet had been exhausted in the naming of new vitamins, word comes from the University of California that the story is only just beginning. With a characteristic scientific zest for breaking small things into still smaller pieces, the California scientists have just succeeded in breaking Vitamin B into its component parts.

When the pieces are fed to human guinea pigs, the results are distinctly exciting. Hair begins to fuzz on the billiard ball variety of human head with the speed of a wheat field after the rain. Feminine faces that long ago gave up any pretense of youthful beauty begin to trade their caverns and crevasses for youthfully smooth skin.

An increase in hair and a decrease in wrinkles may not sound like scientific miracles in this day of bigger and better planes and projectiles. And yet it is somehow reassuring of man's future that he should seek to crack so small a world as a vitamin unit while his own larger world is breaking in pieces around his shoulders.

MUSIC OR MAYHEM

There's more in the music coming over the air these days than the sweet swing of a torch singer or the jumping jive of the latest jitterbug sensation. Music may be on the air, but there's mayhem going on behind the mike. While "I Love You" floats out over the ether waves, the battle lines are forming for as bitter a battle of the ballads as tin pan alley has ever seen.

It's all a matter of cash—tribute or toll, depending which side your score is buttered on. For several years, broadcasters have paid an annual premium for the privilege of airing their music. This toll has been paid to a composers' holding company which has in turn doled out the funds to the nation's working tunesmiths and arrangers. Now the broadcasters are attempting to break the ASCAP monopoly. The latter has retaliated with a "no cash, no music" edict. The resulting blank spaces on the air waves, spaces once filled with the arrangements of Irving Berlin, George Gershwin, and Victor Herbert, will be hard to fill, but filling them is the job of the broadcasters have assigned to composers working directly for their own personal music-holding company.

All of which may go to prove that Dad, at least for this once, has been right. Hasn't he been saying for 10 these many years that the sounds coming out of the radio sound more like a battle than the sweet harmony that used to be called music in his day.

EXIT FOR AN EXPLORER

Into the unexplored valley of the shadow of death has passed one of the most mysterious of contemporary Americans, Dr. Frederick A. Cook. With the rush of an Arctic ice storm, Dr. Cook's career passed from the heights of acclaim to the depths of condemnation. Hailed in 1908 as the discoverer of the North Pole, he lived to see his claims rejected by a committee of his exploring peers.

Yet through the thirty years since that unanimous condemnation, there have been those who have championed the cause of the German immigrant. With facts and figures on dog power, ice

THE CRY OF "SPY"

From down Panama way comes word that the latest in spy scares was all a matter of misplaced dots and dashes. Somewhere along the line between report and reader, the word "aliens" became "agents" and a simple story of immigrant control became a headlined spy capture.

Of little importance in itself, this incident is important as a warning. Reports of spies have become almost as common in our daily news as reports of spending. Fifth columns now support a whole superstructure of gossip and rumor. Hourly the burden of the FBI becomes greater.

The menace of spy hysteria is perhaps more imminent than the menace of actual espionage. The problems of national defense and national reconstruction call for cool heads and consistent thinking. The actualities of re-arming leave no room in the popular mind for the shadows of spy chasing.

The reality of espionage is recognized and real. Great as is the danger from fifth columns, our greatest danger lies along the path of the shepherd who voiced his cry of "wolf" so many times that none came to aid him when real danger threatened. Let's make certain that in America the cry of "spy" rings clear and true, a call to action, not a shadowy challenge.

I SAVED A LIFE!

I saved a life this morning!

It happened as I drove to work. The street seemed safe and free from traffic. The temptation to step hard on the throttle was difficult to resist. Yet a few seconds later from between parked cars dashed a little child, a child whose life would surely have been forfeit had the speed of my car been greater.

There seems to be an answer in that incident, an answer to the question that has often been asked by those who think as they sit behind the wheels of their cars: "What can I do to prevent death on the highways?"

What can you do?

Highway safety is above all else a personal matter. It depends not so much upon machines as up minds. It centers not so much upon tires as upon thoughts. It thrives on personal care more than on super highways.

Personal responsibility can make highways safe. By putting it strictly up to the driver, operators have proved that the driver who makes highway safety his personal concern is a safe driver.

What can you do? You can stop thinking of "sudden death" in terms of the other fellow. You can begin making it your personal problem in your daily life. You can put safe driving in the front rack of your mind.

I saved a life this morning. Today it was the life of a little girl, a girl with shiny black eyes and a big red ball. Next time it may be mine!

drift, and snow conditions they have checked the conflicting claims of Cook and Peary, and proved, at least to their own satisfaction that of the two, Cook was the most likely to have reached the furthest north.

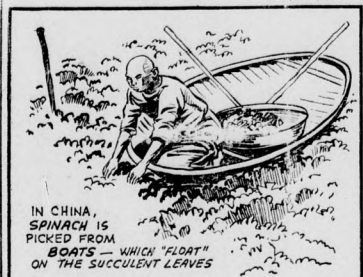

Cheered by a death-bed pardon for a post condemnation mail fraud conviction, Dr. Cook has passed beyond the acclaim of his supporters or the denunciations of his detractors. Did he ever stand upon the snow blasted top of the world? Whether he did or not, he has now embarked on the greatest exploration of all, an exploration for which no claim of achievement can be made and from which no speeding dog team can rescue him.

For Dr. Frederick A. Cook, the exploration of life has ended!

DEL MUTOLO AND ECONOMY

A rather remarkable coalition of Democrats and Republicans lined up at Sacramento to bring economy into the governor's record-breaking $557,000,000 budget. It was repeatedly stated by the economy-minded legislators that they do not aim to hamper the functioning of any of the State's departments, but they feel that this is not a time to expand the State's expenses.

It was a source of local satisfaction that Assemblyman M. G. Del Muto of San Jose was among the legislators voting for economy, despite considerable pressure which must have been placed upon him by the administration.

in a spirit of skeptical investigation until I am sure, as often happens, that a colored gentleman is not in the wood pile. Many proposed laws are too long—longer than the constitution of the United States. I am not sure but that "No" men rather than "know" men are needed in the State Legislature. Naturally I shall be sympathetic with the interests of fellow grey-heads, yet I have never been in the past more anxious for good government for my own security than I am now to make the state a safe and good place in which my children and grand-children can live after I am gone. It is not my plan to mortgage their future with unnecessary debts.

Advertising IS Good News

Specially now, when the world is so full of strife, misery and anxiety, it's good to be able to get the pleasant news that comes in the ads.

About a light-hearted summer turban... sportswear coolly stolen from the men... a refreshing hot weather beverage...

A pipe that promises a smoke-treat... a light straw hat for the steaming brow...

The ads are reminders that life can't all be woe... reminders to be as normal and comfortable as possible... reminders to which you can sensibly respond. For the ads lead you to sound values.

POLITICAL PARADE

By CLEM WHITAKER

Back in 1916, California's vote elected Woodrow Wilson President for his second term, after most of the United States had gone to bed, believing Hughes had won the election!

And California, in the year 1940, may again hold a pivotal position in deciding the battle for the presidency. There are developments that definitely indicate it and some of the eastern political experts are openly forecasting it.

On one point, political bigwigs of both parties agree: If New York goes for Roosevelt, Wilkie can only win by carrying California, with its 22 electoral votes. And both New York and California are battlegrounds, with neither side willing to concede an inch.

The Gallup Poll, showing Wilkie leading in electoral votes (the kind that elect!), and Roosevelt with a slight edge in total popular vote, is hotly disputed. But virtually every other impartial check, regardless of who has the edge, indicates a neck-and-neck battle—with New York's uncertainty making making California's role doubly significant.

One analysis, by an expert who seldom guesses, lists the states, one by one, and arrives at the conclusion that if Roosevelt can carry his home state of New York, and if his running-mate, Wallace, can pick off his state of Iowa—and if they can also carry California—the New Deal will win with 284 electoral votes or 18 more than the required 266. But if California should go for Wilkie, it would be a Republican victory—by a nose!

While both Democratic and Republican managers scoff, publicly, at polls indicating that the race is so close nobody can figure it, privately they frankly concede that's the situation. And as a consequence, California is about to become one of the hottest battlegrounds in the whole U.

Where He Could Go for Thirty Cents

By IRVIN S. COBB

AFTER the latest election, the members of the Speakers' Bureau of Tammany Hall had a banquet to celebrate the Democratic victory in New York. The newly elected Lieutenant-Governor, George W. Lunn, came down from upstate to sit at the guest table and join his political brethren in the love feast.

After several dependable local orators had been heard, the toastmaster, an old Tammany war-horse, called upon Mr. Lunn for a speech. In introducing Mr. Lunn, the toastmaster rather goaded him for some of his personal beliefs. He said that Lunn formerly had shown Socialistic leanings and that he still was a Prohibitionist. In fact, as the saying goes, he rather got under Lunn's skin.

Slowly the latter rose to his feet. "Gentlemen," he said, "the usages of polite society and the nature of this occasion conspire to prevent me from telling your chairman exactly what I think of him for his remarks in presenting me to this distinguished assemblage. But his words and my reaction to those words bring to mind an incident which happened not long ago. I am going to tell you the story of that incident and if, in the point of it, the gentleman sees a personal application, I shall not be sorry.

"Some three months ago, fourteen of us were waiting in a line at the Grand Central Station to purchase fares on outgoing trains. Some among us had but a few minutes to spare. All of us, naturally, were in a hurry to transact the business and get ourselves and our luggage aboard the cars.

"All of a sudden, an inebriated person burst like an alcoholic bombshell among us. Ignoring the rules of procedure, he shoved his way to the front, elbowing and jostling those already in line, until he reached the ticket window. Upon the shelf he slammed down a quarter and a nickel and in a loud voice stated his wishes.

"Gimme a ticket for San Francisco," he said.

"You can't go to San Francisco for thirty cents," stated the ticket-seller.

"Well, where can I go, then?" he asked.

"And with one voice, gentlemen, all fourteen of us told him."

ions to fire-arms. The flashing lips and flowing skirts of a peace time world have no place in the militant new order of a super race. Freedom in dress as in thought must await the day when a cheery "hello" once more takes the place of a cheery "heil."

Words for a Watchword!

Cordell Hull, fresh from the personal triumph of Havana, has entered the news of the day with a quotation that ought to join "God Bless Our Home" on the walls of every American sitting-room.

The good grey diplomat has said: "We Americans must be ready and willing for real sacrifice of time and substance, and for hard personal service in order to create an unbreakable resistance to forces of aggression." In occupational disease that tions these days of mass conflict, flict, mass movement, and mass psychology, we are apt to forget that the only lasting basis for our national development lies in the personal action of every individual American. No amount of national haste or hysteria will ever lift us out of the rut of past disinterest. Only supreme personal service and sacrifice will insure the survival of the Democratic way of life.

turns up with a pat answer to all the nation's problems, we're going to list ourselves as a case of "opinionitis", an occupational disease that causes violent fits at the mention of, "Now what's your opinion on — ?" Personally, we gave up having opinions a long time ago. Nowadays, we just wait for the poll to appear, and get all our opinions ready made. It was nice to have custom-tailored ideas, but that's the trouble with progress—! Hold on there, that begins to sound like an opinion. We'll let you know what we think about progress when the poll comes in.
